TO OUR CUSTOMERS

Thank you for your kind letter pertaining to the nice healthy plants we send. Our aim is to supply plants and have them reach you, as we would want them to reach us. Sometimes conditions beyond our control (slow transportation, unnecessary roughness in shipping, etc.) upset our aim. We do Guarantee our plants to arrive in good condition. All unsatisfactory shipments must be reported in 5 (five) days after receipt of plants. Your cooperation will enable us to serve you better.

ORDERING

We aim to execute orders as soon as received, but in the rush season slight delays are unavoidable, and when such is the case an acknowledgment will be sent at once. If you order early and give a shipping date, we will be pleased to ship so that the orders reach their destination on or about the date specified, weather permitting. When no shipping instructions are given, orders are filled in the rotation in which they are received.

TERMS

Those desiring to open accounts will please furnish references from three concerns with whom they have credit established, and allow sufficient time for us to investigate; otherwise cash must accompany order.

Remittances should be made by Money Orders, Drafts, or Checks in amount sufficient to cover the complete order. We cannot guarantee receipt of money sent in any other way. We reserve the right to decline C.O.D. orders.

No charge is made for boxes or packing, except on shipments sent Parcel Post Prepaid, and the additional cost on these is covered by the additional 10, 15, of 20 percent as per table of rates.

In filling out your order, always give shipping directions, and write NAME and ADDRESS distinctly on each and every order.

SHIPPING

Weather determines the date of first spring shipments. Most years, we can ship through most of February and all of March - but no always. We ship up until the plants are too far advanced for good shipping. Fall shipping begins in early September until winter - usually late November or early December. Early ordering enables us to ship as soon as weather permits.

Plants should be set out at once when they are received, unless they are slightly withered. In this case remove them from the box to a cool place, wet the moss that was used for packing and lay it on the roots until they are revived. Never set out a withered plant.

All orders are forwarded by Express or Parcel Post, purchaser paying charges. For those who wish their orders sent prepaid, additional charges must be added for special packing and postage. THE QUESTION BOX

What kind of soils do rock plants enjoy?

The average soil composition is 1/2 loam, 1/4 leafmold, or some other organic material, and 1/4 coarse sand.

While most hardy perennials prefer full sun, what general list like shady areas?

There are Anchusa, Funkia, Anemone, Dicentra, Digitalis, Helleborus and many others.

Can rock plants and perennials be shipped anytime?

Not usually, we ship mostly in the spring and fall. Winter shipments are sometimes delayed due to frozen soil conditions which limit our diggings. However, perennials are not killed by freezing temperatures.

How can I get two bloomings out of my perennials the same year?

Cut the fading flowers from the plants. In a few weeks, a second flowering may occur. This is quite common in Delphinium.

What should I do when moles are tunneling through the garden?

Moles live on grubs of night flying beetles or Japanese beetles. An easy control is to treat the soil with Chlordane or Dieldrin. This will eliminate the grubs and ultimately the moles.

What location is nice for a rock garden?

First of all, a steep slope offers unlimited possibilities. There should be an abundance of light and a good circulation of air.

Are wet locations good for rock gardens?

No, most rock garden plants prefer the dry alpine soil conditions. Note the symbols beside each variety that tells its preference to sun and moisture.

PERENNIALS FOR YOUR GARDEN

Published by -

American Assoc. of Nurserymen

All over America, wherever gardens flourish, perennials have their place in sun and shade. A source of color and fragrance in the garden, they also provide an abundance of cut-flowers for our homes. In modest dooryards, in spacious gardens, and in city parks, perennials are an important part of the landscape.

In contrast to annuals whose life cycle consists of one year from seed to seed, perennials live on for several years or longer, depending on the care they get.

Many of the hardy perennials we grow today are native to our own country and many more have been introduced from other lands. All are adaptable in some way to American gardens. We soon learn to know those that flourish in partial shade, in full sun, in wet places or in hot, dry areas. With this knowledge at hand it is possible to find plants to fit almost any situation.

Modern gardens, unlike those of yesteryear, are usually comparatively small in size. As a result we are challenged to make the most of the plot of ground that is ours. Think of perennials as a part of your outdoor living-room - the plant materials which help to complement its color scheme, furniture, and decoration.

We are anxious to help you enjoy the finest perennials available in order to make your garden more colorful and more interesting. Feel free to consult us.

A gay perennial border adds interest and color to this pleasant outdoor living-room.

PLANNING YOUR PERENNIAL BORDER

Perennials are an indispensable part of every garden, however small. In the gardens of our grandmothers, peonies, iris, daylilies, delphiniums, phlox, chrysanthemums and a few other old favorites were the backbone of the perennial border. Today, however, the hybridizers have given us day-lilies that will bloom over five months, phlox in an amazing variety of colors, iris and peonies greatly improved in size, color and form, and chrysanthemums of Arctic hardiness and unlimited color range - to mention only a few. Then too in the past few years we have learned to grow many new and desirable hardy perennials. Since the ambition of every industrious gardener is to have an everblooming perennials border, let us give you a word of advice before you plant yours: Plan it first on paper.

SIZE AND LOCATION

First of all, there is the question of size and location. If your garden is formal, the border will be bounded by straight lines. If it is to be informal, it is an easy matter to determine the curves by laying down the garden hose and moving it around until you find lines that are pleasing with the surrounding landscape.

Naturally the length of the border will be determined by the space you have at hand. As far as depth is concerned, your border should be eight to nine feet wide (that is, if you would have a continuous display of color all summer). Provide for access from both sides.

Perennial borders need some sort of background - a hedge, a shrub border, a trellis, a fence, or a wall. If a shrub border or hedge is used as a setting, provide for several feet of space between your border and the background so that the shrub roots will not take away from the fertility of the border. This space also provides easy access for maintenance.

Perennials, like most other plants, prefer full sun and well-drained fertile soil. A well-prepared perennial bed ought to produce good results for at least four years.

Large plantings of a single perennial in several colors will add distinction to your garden.

The rock-garden is an ideal place to create picturesque effects.

CHOOSING THE PLANTS

If you are making a new perennial border or remaking an old one, you will undoubtedly have some perennials in your garden that can be saved. Perhaps they will need to be divided (frequent dividing every two or three years keeps the plants in healthy condition). In selecting plants for your border it is far better to mass varieties in groups of three, five or more than to use single plants of different varieties. The result of using single plants is usually spotty and uninteresting. In planning your border do not neglect plants with foliage that will be striking even when they are not in bloom.

COLOR AND ARRANGEMENT

It is quite certain that you will not always achieve the perfect color scheme the first time, but then half the fun of gardening comes with moving plants about until you find the most harmonious grouping and the location they like best. A simple rule for arrangement is tall plants for the background low ones for the foreground or edges, plants of medium height for the middle ground. However, the ordinary tier or bleacher effect will not give the most interesting results. Strong accent plants in the middle ground will add distinction to your border; for example, a clump of daylilies at regular or irregular intervals, a group of delphiniums or some showy coneflowers.

CONTINUOUS BLOOM

The ideal to strive for is an abundance of color throughout the entire border from spring until late fall. Try to group plants that bloom at one time. Flowering bulbs will provide additional color in spring; when these have faded, annuals can be set in their places. As you read the garden books and magazines and walk in your neighbors' gardens you will get many original ideas for effective plant combinations.

A suggestion for an informal grouping of perennials. A few kinds are used in broad irregular masses.

MAKING THE PLAN

After you have gathered together your list of plants, choosing the colors and varieties you like best, you can work out your plan on paper. Determine a convenient scale for easy plotting. If you like to dabble in color, use colored crayons to help visualize the effects. Remember to group your plants irregularly, and not to set them too close together. Allow space equal to approximately half their mature height between plants. For example, chrysanthemum reach a height of two to three feet; space them twelve to fifteen inches apart.

PLANTING YOUR ROCK-GARDEN

Perennials have an important place in every well-planned rock-garden. For the most part the hardy plants that naturally grow in rocky areas are low and compact in form. By nature, they are plants whose roots prefer the protection and the moisture that comes from close contact with stone. Many of them can endure hot, dry conditions easily and in fact seem to thrive on them. The sedums, the hen-and-chickens (sempervivums), creeping phlox, and the rock-rose (helianthemums) are but a few of these sturdy plants. There are also many alpine introduced from the mountain sections of our own country and from Europe that are well adapted to American rock-gardens. Any list of rock plants is likely to be representative of the mountain regions all over the world.

There is not space here nor is it in point to give complete instructions about the making of a rock-garden. One good principle to keep in mind is that rocks in a man-made rock-garden should simulate natural positions as much as possible. Some of the loveliest rock-gardens in America are man-made. They are outstanding simply because stones have been placed in a natural way.

Rock-gardens have become popular in America for several reasons. In the first place, many home-owners have outcroppings of stone on their property. Still others have steep slopes or banks which are adaptable to rock-garden use. Then there are those who enjoy collection choice and unusual plants of miniature size. Rock-gardening is indeed a fascinating hobby.

If your rock-garden does not satisfy you, or if it needs to be remade, consult us. We shall be glad to give you suggestions.

Many perennials prefer a moist situation—Japanese Iris in an informal setting.

WALL GARDENS

Wherever dry walls can be utilized they add color and a pleasing note of interest to the garden. Usually they are used where there is a change of level. A wall garden made of well-placed native stone provides a setting for many unusual rock plants.

Many garden enthusiasts who enjoy miniature plants but have no place for a rock-garden, find a desirable outlet by building a wall garden which lends year-round beauty. Even when there is little bloom in a wall garden, a pleasing picture is made by the distinctive foliage of tiny plants against the varied texture of the stones.

A small formal garden featuring perennials in symmetrical beds. Two or three kinds of plants should be dominant.

PERENNIALS IN THE SHRUB BORDER

In spring shrub borders are usually gay with color but as summer approaches they lack it. Here is just the place for some sturdy perennials. In small gardens with limited space, shrub and perennials can be combined effectively in a double-purpose border, where each can supplement the other.

In selecting perennials for your shrub border choose rugged types that grow vigorously and require little care—hemerocallis, peonies, Oriental poppies and coneflowers are good examples. To add further interest use gray or variegated-foliaged plants either for border or in broad masses. In summer, clumps of white flowers will give the border a cool aspect.

For easy maintenance set your perennials closer than you would under ordinary conditions. This helps to eliminate weeds and staking as well. Borders of this sort do not require as much care as plantings of a more formal nature. You can usually count upon annuals to help increase the display of bloom.

Old Fashioned Kitchen Herbs

Herbs are usually of a herbaceous nature and are exceedingly easy to grow. Moderately rich soil of good physical condition is normally the best condition for vigorous healthy growth.

The preparation of the soil for herbs requires a depth of 18 to 24 inches, if possible. Deep root penetration allows for luxuriant growth for which we are most interested. Any time or labor saved in the preparation of the soil may lead to stunted or dwarfed specimens of plants. Physical condition of the soil can be changed by adding a yearly application of fibrous organic material such as dried rotted manure.

Over richness as well as poverty of soil tends to make plants in general, less hardy. Yearly applications of a good organic fertilizer will be sufficient to maintain the proper soil richness and condition.

In the northern belt of the states, winter protection of herbs is often well thought of. A thin covering of a winter mulch such as salt or marsh hay, is considered the best because of its non-packing ability and the absence of weed seeds. Placement of the mulch should be after the ground is frozen and not removed until the first signs of growth in the spring.

In the spring after the mulch is removed, the soil should be cultivated so as to allow proper root growth. The foliage should be trimmed at the same time. Periodic pruning during the summer will maintain the general shape of the plants.

Below is our list of choice perennial herbs we suggest as the foundation plants for any and all herb garden:

ANGELICA (Angelica Officinalis). An herb for the background of your garden with sturdy stems, celery-like foliage, and large, flat umbels of white flowers. The candied stems are a rare delicacy. This plant will act as a biennial if you do not remove the dead flower heads. Supposed to have angelic healing virtues and used in flavorings. Very ornamental - 4 ft.

AGRIMONY (Agrimonia Eupatoria). One of those ancient herbs with quite a reputation for its medicinal qualities. Also used as a yellow dye. Leaves look somewhat like a strawberry, with tapering spikes of yellow flowers. 1 to 1 1/2 ft.

CATNIP (Nepeta Cataria). Beloved of cats; also a medicinal plant used as a tea. Tall, gray foliage. 2 ft.

CHIVE (Allium Schoenoprasum). For those who like a mild onion seasoning. Frequent cuttings promote growth. Never cut like a hedge, leaving only a stubble until new shoots develop. Select the number of leaves needed for garnishing or flavoring and cut down near the roots. Chop; use to season salads, cottage cheese scrambled eggs, tomato juice, sandwich spreads, and creamed soups. 10 inches.

COSTMARY (Chrysanthemum Balsamita tanacetoides). An old fashioned, sweet-smelling herb with long narrow leaves and coarse, sprawling growth. Sometimes used in salads; the dried leaves are used as a beverage tea. 1 ft.

HOREHOUND (Marrubium Vulgare). A good tonic. The tea, sweetened with honey, is useful in the treatment of coughs and colds. Use also in the well known horehound candy. Downy, crinkled gray foliage is very ornamental. 2 ft.

HYSSOP (Hyssopus Officinalis). Leaves used for medicinal purposes and to season vegetables. A good edging plant. Rich blue flowers. 15 inches.

HYSSOP, PALESTINE Much like the above but a more prostrate grower. 15 inches.

LAVENDER (Lavandula Officinalis). True lavender. Dried flowers commonly used for scenting linens and in potpourris. 15 in.

LEMON BALM (Melissa Officinalis). Clean bright green leaves, deliciously scented with lemon. Used as a tea, to flavor other drinks, as a medicine and for fragrance. 1 ft.

MINT:

APPELMINT (Mentha Rotundifolia). This round-leaved form with its wooly foliage and its showy spikes of lavender flowers is most delightfully decorative. Sometimes used as a substitute for peppermint; especially good in fruit drinks, frozen and chilled desserts. 2 ft.

CURLYMINT (Mentha spicata crispa). Everybody who likes mint should grow this variety with its curious curled and twisted foliage. Bold flavor for juleps, iced tea. 2 ft.

PENNYROYAL (Mentha Pulegium). Tender perennial. Used as a tea, either by itself or combined with lemon verbena. 10 in.

MINT (Cont'd)

PEPPERMINT (Mentha Piperita). Leaves and tender tops may be infused in cooling drinks. 1 1/2 ft.

PINEAPPLE MINT (Mentha Rotundifolia Variegata). Gray leaf, dappled with creamy splotches. Lilac flowers. Very attractive in bouquets. 2 ft.

SPEARMINT (Mentha Spicata). Fresh leaves used to flavor sauces and iced drinks, particularly juleps. A sprig of fresh mint put into the pot when cooking new potatoes and peas, adds greatly to their flavor. 1 1/2 ft.

ROSEMARY (Rosmarinus Officinalis). Romantic in name, its fragrance is used in sachets; its flavor to glorify roast meats and poultry, stews, soups, stuffings, spinach, swiss chard. Use fresh or dried. 2 to 3 ft.

RUE (Ruta Graveolens). Bits of the pungent blue-green foliage may be used with discretion to flavor salads or vegetables. May be used as a low clipped border plant for formal beds. 2 ft.

SAGE (Salvia Officinalis). Dried leaves season meats, sausages, stuffings, and cheese. Minced green leaves sprinkled over cheese sandwiches or a tablespoon added to cheese souffle give you a new delight in both. 2 1/2 ft.

SAVORY, WINTER (Satureia Montana). Leaves season meats, sausages, vegetable dishes and certain liqueurs. An excellent plant for edging borders. 15 inches.

SWEET MARJORAM (Origanum Majorana). Use leaves, fresh or dried, with beef, lamb, or pork, in stuffings, salads, sauces and vegetable dishes. Also to scent potpourris. 10 inches.

SWEET WOODRUFF (Asperula Odorata). Hay-scented leaves used to flavor wines. The plant is a good ground-cover for shady places. 6 inches.

TARRAGON, TRUE (Artemisia Dracunculus). One of the indispensable herbs. The basis for the well-known Tarragon vinegar, and used in salad dressings and special meat sauces. 15 inches.

THYME, KITCHEN (Thymus vulgaris). Dried leaves season meat dishes, gravies, stuffings, and dressings; excellent in cheese dishes and clam chowder. A bit of thyme is wonderful in scalloped potatoes. 10 inches.

WORMWOOD (Artemisia Absinthium). A good background plant. Dislikes by moths. The leaves are used to flavor cordials. 3 ft.

ORDER PITZONKA'S QUALITY SEED - IT'S QUALITY

When passing through Bristol, stop by and see our plants in bloom at our Garden Mart. A full selection of Perennials and Pansies is carried during the spring and fall seasons, along with a complete line of Garden Supplies, Trees, Shrubs, and Evergreens, suitable for all types of homes.

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS

Use good garden soil with plenty of humus in the form of well rotted cow manure, compost or leaf mold worked through it. Thoroughly pulverize the soil on top and firm down. If the soil is dry, water down and allow time to dry off enough to handle. Pansy seed should be treated with "anti-damping off" materials such as Arasan, Seedtone, etc. When treating seed, follow the package directions. Loosen the surface with a garden rake and broadcast the seed thinly over the bed. Rake in just enough to cover the seeds, or sow in shallow rows about 1/4 in. deep at the rate of 8 to 10 seeds per inch. Cover with soil that has been thrown up on either side. Space rows 4 to 5 inches apart. After sowing, press down lightly with a small board and water with a fine spray. Shade the bed with muslin or thin burlap, keeping the material moist until seeds show signs of life. When seedlings appear, remove the shade and replace with half-shade.
